Whether you're a seasoned hiker or a novice adventurer, the West Highland Way promises an unforgettable experience. With its well-maintained trails, excellent accommodations, and abundance of natural beauty, the Way is an accessible and rewarding trek for anyone seeking an outdoor adventure.

Sections of the West Highland Way

The West Highland Way is typically divided into eight sections, each with its own unique character and highlights.

Section 1: Milngavie to Drymen (12 miles)

The Way begins in the town of Milngavie, just north of Glasgow. This first section takes you through the scenic Campsie Fells, offering stunning views of the surrounding countryside. You'll pass through the ancient Lennox Forest and cross the River Kelvin before arriving in the charming village of Drymen.

Section 2: Drymen to Balmaha (10 miles)

This section follows the eastern shore of Loch Lomond, the largest lake in Scotland. You'll enjoy breathtaking views of the loch and its surrounding mountains, including Ben Lomond, the highest peak in the region. The Way takes you through the picturesque villages of Balmaha and Rowardennan, where you can stop for refreshments or a bite to eat.

Section 2: Drymen to Balmaha

Section 3: Balmaha to Inverarnan (15 miles)

This section takes you through the heart of the Loch Lomond and Trossachs National Park. You'll climb steadily up the slopes of Conic Hill, rewarded with panoramic views of the surrounding landscape. The Way then follows the course of the River Falloch, passing through dense forests and cascading waterfalls. You'll end the day in the village of Inverarnan, nestled at the foot of Ben Lomond.

Section 4: Inverarnan to Crianlarich (15 miles)

This section is known as the "Heart of the Highlands" and for good reason. You'll traverse the stunning Glen Falloch, a narrow valley surrounded by towering mountains. The Way takes you past the ruins of Inveraray Castle and through the village of Crianlarich, a popular base for outdoor enthusiasts.

Section 4: Inverarnan to Crianlarich

Section 5: Crianlarich to Tyndrum (12 miles)

This section takes you through the rugged Rannoch Moor, a vast and desolate landscape that is home to a variety of wildlife, including red deer and golden eagles. You'll pass by the ruins of Black Mount Lodge, a former hunting lodge that was once visited by Queen Victoria. The Way ends in the village of Tyndrum, where you can
